Performance	6
Important Information	7

SUMMARY

In October, the Guinness Greater China Fund (Y class, GBP) fell by 1.9%, while the benchmark, the MSCI Golden Dragon Net Total Return Index (MSCI Golden Dragon Index) rose by 1.7%, and the MSCI China Net Total Return Index (MSCI China Index) fell by 1.8% (please see page 3 for an explanation of why we refer to the MSCI China Index).

The best performing stocks in the Fund in October were Geely, TSMC and Suofeiya Home Collection. The weakest were Shenzhou International, Netease and Baidu.

In October, relative to the MSCI China Index, contributors to the Fund's performance were the structural underweight to Tencent and Alibaba which underperformed, and stock selection in the Consumer Discretionary sector. Detractors from performance were stock selection in the Industrials and Financials sectors.

COMMENTARY

(Performance data in the section in USD terms unless otherwise stated)

Returns by Market in October

(Data from 30/09/24 to 31/10/24, returns in USD, source: Bloomberg, Guinness Global Investors calculations)

Returns by Market Year-to-Date

(Data from 31/12/23 to 31/10/24, returns in USD, source: Bloomberg, Guinness Global Investors calculations)

After a very strong September, China gave back some of its gains in October and the MSCI China Index fell by 5.9% compared to the MSCI World Index which fell by 2.0%. The rally faded partly because the government failed to announce a major step-up in support for consumers. Year-to-date, the MSCI China Index has risen by 21.7%, outperforming the MSCI World Index which has risen by 16.5%.

ATTRIBUTION

In October, the Guinness Greater China Fund (Y class, USD) fell by 5.9%, while the benchmark, the MSCI Golden Dragon Index fell by 2.5%, and the MSCI China Index fell by 5.9%. Therefore in the month the Fund underperformed the MSCI Golden Dragon Index by 3.4% and performed in line with the MSCI China Index.

The MSCI Golden Dragon Index is a weighted average of the MSCI China, Taiwan and Hong Kong indexes. As of the end of October, Taiwan's weight in the Golden Dragon Index was c.38%. In the Fund, we hold two positions in Taiwan which collectively have a weight of c.6.5%. As the Fund is underweight to Taiwan compared to the benchmark, the Fund benefited from less of the outperformance of the MSCI Taiwan Index.

In October, relative to the MSCI China Index, areas which helped the Fund's performance were:

- Structural underweight to Tencent and Alibaba. The Fund is run on an equally weighted basis and so each position has a neutral weight of 3.2%. As of the end of October, Tencent's and Alibaba's weight in the MSCI China Index was 15.7% and 8.5%, making them the largest stocks by far in that index. Tencent and Alibaba underperformed in the month and so the Fund suffered from less of their underperformance than the index.
- Stock selection in the Consumer Discretionary sector, led by Pinduoduo (not held), Geely and Suofeiya Home Collection.

In October, areas which detracted from the Fund's relative performance were:

- Stock selection in the Industrials sector, driven by Shenzhen Inovance Technology and Haitian International.
- Stock selection in the Financials sector, driven by AIA Group and Hong Kong Exchanges and Clearing.

OUTLOOK

The proposal by Trump to put 60% tariffs on Chinese imports is certainly eye-catching, but it likely only to accelerate a trend that has been evident for the last five years. The chart below, drawing on data from the US Census Bureau, shows the path taken by Chinese imports – growth from 1987 to 2000, acceleration after China's admission into the World Trade Organisation in 2000 to a peak in 2017. Since then, China's share has declined to its lowest level since 2004; and the nominal dollar value of $426 billion is the lowest since 2012.

Guinness Greater China

Chinese companies have already had to come to terms with an unfriendly trading environment that was stepped up in Donald Trump's first term and then more stringently applied under Biden. Trade re-routing and the development of new markets have both been material trends over this period.

From China's perspective, this additional pressure will have an impact. To quantify this we need to put some numbers together. China's GDP in 2023 was worth US$ 17.89 trillion and the total value of Chinese exports of goods, according to China customs data, was $3.38 trillion or 18.9% of GDP on a gross basis. On China's own numbers, 14.8% of exports went to the US or about 2.75% of GDP. If we assumed, for example, a 25% drop in Chinese imports, then the impact on GDP on a gross basis is -0.6%.

The wider effect, given as the export multiplier, is very hard to compute. It relies on measures of the marginal propensities to consume and save over time. But China's economic structure has changed very rapidly, as have income levels over the past 30 years, and it has been subject to fiscal shocks all of which make savings and spending patterns highly variable and therefore difficult to estimate. However, we can measure China's exports to gross production i.e. the proportion of China manufacturing output that is sold abroad. The chart below was produced by Professor Richard Baldwin of the IMD Business School for The Centre for Economic Policy Research (CEPR). Since 2004, the proportion of Chinese goods which are manufactured exports has been coming down and its economic dependence on exports is not as high as many assume.

GUINNESS GREATER CHINA FUND - PERFORMANCE SINCE LAUNCH (USD)

Source: FE fundinfo to 31.10.24. Investors should note that fees and expenses are charged to the capital of the Fund. This reduces the return on your investment by an amount equivalent to the Ongoing Charges Figure (OCF). The current OCF for the share class used for the fund performance returns is 0.89%. Returns for share classes with a different OCF will vary accordingly. Transaction costs also apply and are incurred when a fund buys or sells holdings. The performance returns do not reflect any initial charge; any such charge will also reduce the return.
